Abstract

The author, a historian and the administrator, for twenty-six years, of the NGO set up to develop the European dimension of higher education, the Conférence des Recteurs Européens (CRE) from 1959 to 2001, and now the European University Association (EUA), places inter-university developments in their historical context. He views higher education as but one area in which political and economic changes press for transformation. His text represents a testimony of the work achieved by CRE over a period of more than forty years. (HRK / Abstract übernommen)
