Abstract

The Future Agenda for Internationalization in Higher Education responds to two distinct needs: first, it seeks to focus specifically on dimensions of internationalization that are known to be under-researched; and second, it aims to give voice to a new generation of researchers and analysts, thereby framing 'next generation' perspectives on the phenomenon of internationalization. In so doing, this volume endeavors to present perspectives on new contexts shaping the internationalization of higher education, new modes for exploring and understanding distinct aspects of the phenomenon, and new topics relevant to its development and implementation.
