Abstract

From the inception of this book project, purposeful steps were taken to shape its focus around what we opted to term ‘next generation’ perspectives on internationalization. Dictionary definitions of the term ‘generation’ typically hinge on two main notions. On the one hand, a generation speaks to the idea of individuals of or pertaining to a group of contemporaries, or a cohort, living or undergoing an experience at the same time. The term ‘generation’ may also relate to the idea of creating something, i.e., bringing something new into being. (HRK / Abstract übernommen)
