

06.3.2026

Author

GOMEZ-ORTUETA, Maria (DUTSCHKE, Dennis)

Title

Strangers on a train : viewing U.S. internationalization through European eyes / Maria Gomez-Ortueta ; Dennis Dutschke

Publication year

2012

Source/Footnote

In: Internationalisation of European Higher Education : an EUA/ACA Handbook / Ed.: Michael Gaebel ... - Berlin : Raabe, 2012. - A 2.3-5. - S. 1 - 41

Inventory number

33676

Keywords

Ausland : USA : Hochschulwesen allgemein ; Ausland : USA : Auslandsbeziehungen ; Ausland : Europa : Auslandsbeziehungen ; Internationalität ; Mobilität

Abstract

The article is intended to start a discussion that will lead to a better understanding of the U.S. system of higher education, which will then enable European and American universities to collaborate together over the full spectrum of international higher education. The focus is on the U.S. University from its beginnings to the present day, distinguishing diverse types of institutions, faculty and students. The evolution of universities over the last four hundred years has determined the foundation upon which U.S. universities have engaged in Europe, especially with European universities. The desired outcomes of this close look at U.S. universities are not only to inform colleagues in Europe but also to foster a dialogue and collaboration between Europe and America in international education. (HRK / Abstract übernommen)

Signature

06.3.2026

V 10 INTE