Abstract

The establishment and implementation of a quality assurance system in Greek universities is a policy theme that always reinforced the conflict in the specific policy arena. Policy document analysis is used for the analysis of the efforts on producing and implementing such policies. Relevant data is drawn by a larger scale research, in which, higher education is considered as a policy arena where actors form networks that try to translate their common beliefs into public policy. Paper?s hypothesis is that quality assurance policies in Greek universities are being developed following and in agreement with corresponding European education policies since Greece is both an EU member and a participant on Bologna process. Although these external influences result the establishment of relative to European developments legislative framework, Greek governments face hindrances during
